

BACHELOR TAX HAS GIVEN A TO 100 BABIES

Twenty More Little Ones and Their Mothers Go to Sea Breeze.

ALL GAIN IN HEALTH.

A Week in the Fresh Air of Incalculable Benefit to Them.

Twenty more babies to-day joined The Evening World's Bachelor Tax Colony at Sea Breeze.

This makes just one hundred babies and one hundred little mothers who have been sent to the seaside resort since The Evening World levied its tax on bachelors six weeks ago.

"If only the bachelors who have contributed life and happiness to these little creatures could see them now and then a week later they would feel newly repaid for their donations to this worthy cause," said Mrs. Ingraham, Superintendent of the Association for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, as the twenty bachelors' babies and the twenty little mothers were gathered together to be taken to Sea Breeze this morning.

Photographs Can't Show It.

"Photographs cannot show the great changes in these children, and I wish there was some way we could let the bachelors realize the good they are doing. A picture loses the glow of health in the cheek, the sparkle in formerly dull eyes and the general state of improved health. A week means more than a month to a grown up person for babies have wonderful recuperative powers. You see, a baby can practically be brought back to health in a week's time, though when the little thing needs help we could let the bachelors see the good directly done by the babies themselves, the benefit reaches into the future for mothers are taught how to care for them properly. You cannot make my statement too strong in the interest of the good done by the bachelors for these little ones. The one hundred babies and one hundred little mothers who have been sent to Sea Breeze will have health and happiness to thank them for."

When the bachelor tax was first levied the sum of $5 was definitely stipulated, but the interest of bachelors could not afford this sum so we decided that The Evening World would make its bachelor tax payable in weekly installments of $1. In that way bachelors have contributed a sum from $1 to $50 and as a result have been able to overcome the cause of saving babies from the clutches of the summer, colds and the heat and terrible summer conditions.

Glad They Found Bachelors.

The twenty little mothers, with the twenty little bachelors' babies in their arms, to-day were mighty glad The Evening World had recovered so many good-hearted bachelors. There was a light of anticipation in every little mother's eyes and the little bachelors' faces were bright and happy. The week comes there will be a light in their eyes and a bloom of health on their cheeks.

Every one who has witnessed the good accomplished at Sea Breeze heartily says, "Long live the Bachelor Tax!"

Contributions to this fund should be sent to the cashier of The World, marked "Bachelor Tax."

MOTHERS CAN AID
DOCTORS TO SAVE
LIFE OF BABIES.

The Evening World's corps of Sick Babies' Fund physicians are still doing their work of bringing the weak and sickly little creatures of the tenements through the most dread time of the year—summer.

The struggle has been a severe one. Taking into consideration that increase of population the decreased death-rate over the past two years was very great for the ten weeks ending Aug. 4.

For the week ending Aug. 11, however, there was a marked advance in the death rate of both preceding years. The very high temperature largely accounts for this and this was true of the week ending Aug. 18.

Too much attention cannot be given by mothers to sanitary conditions. There will still be warm weather this summer, but if mothers will take the simple precautions laid down by the Evening World's physicians many little lives will be saved.

Maud McElroy, a friend of the babies, has sent in $1 to this fund should be sent to the cashier of The World, marked "Bachelor Tax."

WOODBURY WANTS $913,000 MORE

Admits He Isn't Cleaning Streets as They Should Be, for Lack of Men.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury's estimate for next year's expenses for his department show that he needs nearly a million dollars more as necessary. In his communication to the Board of Estimate the Commissioner gives no heed to the recommendation of the Board of Aldermen that the department be reorganized, and that Borough Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner for Brooklyn be named.

The Commissioner advocates no increase of pay for the sweepers who wanted $800 a year. They now get $720. The Commissioner "earnestly and urgently" advocates no increase, saying they are the best paid men in the city of their class and probably the best paid in the country.

Woodbury asks for $3,947,766 for the year 1907, an actual increase of $813,000. He asks for an increase of salary from $1,800 to $2,500 for District Superintendent, and for $1,200 to $1,500 for the Commissioner.

Forty-four thousand dollars are asked for sweepers for Sunday work. The men do a lot of Sunday work, for which they get no remuneration. An increase of pay for twenty district superintendents is asked. Commissioner Woodbury says the increase ought to be from $1,300 to $1,500. He claims that the more responsible positions than police captains.

Stable foremen ought to have an increase also, the Commissioner holds. He says their salary ought to be $1,600. They now get $1,200. Two hundred and sixty-two more drivers are asked for, and an increase in the sweeping force from 2,500 to 3,000 is considered necessary.

He admits that the work done by the Street-Cleaning Department in Manhattan and Brooklyn has fallen below the standard and "that much has been because of the lack of men."

WANTED HOUSEKEEPER
JOB WITHOUT KISSES.

Matrimonial Agent Tried to Teach
Applicant Duties at Once, but She Objected.

Albert Burdock, whose best advertisement for the matrimonial agency he conducts at No. 1376 Third avenue is a pretty wife, was held in $500 bonds to-day by Magistrate Moss, in the Yorkville Court, to keep the peace and not kiss more young women without their consent.

Ella Ellis, a rosy-cheeked girl about twenty years old, of No. 21 Somerset street, Garfield, N. J., and who is to be married when her fiancé gets enough money, caused Burdock's arrest. She advertised for a position as housekeeper several weeks ago and Burdock asked her to call and offered her a month.

"I took off my hat," she said, "and started to look around to see what was to be done, when he grabbed me and made me sit on his lap. Then he kissed me."

I fought him, but he said that what I would get used to it. I was away as soon as I could and ever since I have been at home sick in bed."

Three days after the incident occurred one of the prettiest young women who had applied to him for a housekeeper several weeks ago and Burdock asked her to call and offered her a month.

TRIPLE FUNERAL MAY FOLLOW OLD MAN'S FALL

Wife and Daughter Dead,
A. L. Caumont Jumps
from Window.

Adolph L. Caumont, an aged and prosperous Brooklyn dry goods merchant, who was to have buried his wife and daughter this afternoon, fell from the third floor cornice of the home of his son-in-law, E. H. King, at No. 289 State street, Brooklyn, to-day. Doctors say he cannot survive and that there may be a triple funeral instead of a double one.

Mr. Caumont's friends believe that grief over the death of his wife and daughter unsettled his mind and that he did not realize what he was doing when he climbed out on the cornice and slipped over.

His wife, Mrs. Lucy Mary Caumont, sixty years old, died at 10 o'clock Monday evening in the Caumont family home at No. 221 Duffield street. Her nurse, day and night, for many weeks, had been her daughter, Miss Lucy Caumont, thirty years old. She was with her mother and held her hand when she died.

Daughter Dies from Shock.

Overcome by the death of her mother, Miss Lucy was carried, while hysterical, to her own bed, and there she died an hour later. Dr. A. Warner Sheppard, who had attended the mother, said that the daughter's death was the result of shock, which is the way the doctors sometimes describe a broken heart.

Mr. Caumont was at his wife's side when she died, and an hour later he threw himself across the dead body of his daughter. Monday night his grief was uncontrollable, and while other relatives made arrangements for the funeral the bereaved husband and father paced the upper hall of his house all night. The doctor gave him a sedative in the morning to bring him rest, and Tuesday evening, when he again became conscious, his grief was such that his son-in-law, Mr. King, induced him to go to his home for the night.

He was watched all last night, it being feared that his mind was not normal. He was sleeping at 6 o'clock this morning, and the rest of the household relaxed its vigilance.

GIRL LIVED A YEAR

Death of Beautiful Model, the Fourteenth, Due to Albany Building Collapse.

ALBANY, Aug. 28.—Miss Ella Donahue died at St. Peter's Hospital early to-day, the fourteenth victim of the collapse more than a year ago of the store building of the John G. Myers Company. Her case is regarded by physicians as extraordinary, the young woman's spine having been broken.

The doctors said at the time that she could not live, but the pretty young woman lingered between life and death from Aug. 8, 1905, the day of the crash. Miss Donahue was a cheek model of exceptional beauty.

WOMAN WHO FLED ELLIS ISLAND BACK

Mrs. Korna Captured in Massachusetts and with Two Children Will Be Deported.

Mrs. Catherine Korna, who is said to have attempted to enter the country under a false registration, was captured in Northampton, Mass., early to-day, and this afternoon was back on Ellis Island with the two little boys she deserted there when she escaped on Aug. 14.

The immigration officials are seeking a man said to have accompanied her to this country and to have aided in her escape from the island.

Mrs. Korna came here on an Austrian Line ship with her two little boys, Jan, two years old, and Edward, four years old. She said she was a widow, but the officials found she was accompanied by a man, and she and her children were detained. Jan was there with his mother and was on the night of Aug. 18 the doctors informed the mother that he was in a dying condition. This did not deter her from deserting the children the next day to escape to the mainland. How she got away the officials do not know, but at roll call she was missing.

She was traced to the home of a man in Northampton, Mass., and early to-day was arrested.

Since her escape the boy, Jan, has recovered from the measles, and it is said she and both the boys will be sent back to Austria.

WHAT, A TRUSTBUSTER IN A SENATE SEAT?

Congressman Gaius Can't See
Congruity in Two Advocacies, and So Declined.

John Wesley Gaius, the Tennessee Congressman, explained to-day why he refused a seat in the Senate at the best election in the State.

He was walking down Broadway, "looking for campaign literature," he said, when he met an old acquaintance from Tennessee.

"Hello, Gaius, what you doing here?" was the greeting.

Gaius told him and the next question was about the seat in the Senate for which Mr. Gaius declined to become a candidate.

"Well, hell!" answered Gaius. "I was too busy after the scalp of that damned Tobacco Trust to take any stock in the Senate. Now look here!" (seriously) "How would a trust buster like me look in the Senate, anyhow?"

"I have time for any Senate business. Just leave me alone where I am and let me do my work. No change of horses for me—half way round the circle."
